COAST CLIPPINGS.

One hundred outlawed Chicago gamblers have arrived in Denver within the last few days.

Clarence G. Kelly has been appointed Notary Public for Lassen county, to reside at Susanville.

A. S. Jones was caved on in the Blue Tent claim, Nevada county, Monday, and was instantly killed.

The Miners' Unions of Nevada county are inquiring into the question of employing Chinese in the mines.

The citizens of Oroville are making preparations to celebrate the Fourth of July in an appropriate manner.

Exclusive of poll-taxes the Chinese of San Francisco only paid for the fiscal year of 1881-82 the sum of $44,142 53.

Julius Tacolite jumped into the Columbia river to rescue a young man who had fallen overboard, and both were drowned.

Sixty tons of apricots is the estimated production of the orchard of Kent & O'Bannon, near Los Gatos, Santa Clara county.

Mrs. A. D. Wilder, wife of Division Superintendent of the Southern Pacific Railroad, died Saturday night at her residence in Oakland.

James Brooks, once one of the proprietors of the Golden Era at San Francisco, died suddenly at Santa Cruz Sunday night.

The army worms that were threatening to invade Marysville a few days ago have disappeared as suddenly as they came, and none are now to be seen.

The Antioch Ledger says the scarcity of fish has caused the canneries on the Sacramento River to advance the price of salmon from forty cents to seventy-five cents each.

Armstrong's sawmill, at Sheep ranch, Calaveras county, on Tuesday night last, was burned, just as it was about ready to commence work for the season. Loss not far from $4,000, on which there was no insurance.

At Volcano, Amador county, a few days ago, as J. D. Stoken was exhibiting a pistol to a customer, unconscious that it had been loaded, it accidentally went off, the ball striking his brother-in-law, Mr. Victor Baker, in the head, causing death in about forty minutes afterwards.

Sheriff Morgan, of Douglas county, Or., had an encounter on Friday, at Springfield, Lane county, with a Mexican horse-thief, who was armed with a Springfield rifle. Morgan was badly used up and slightly wounded, but succeeded in shooting the thief, and capturing him.

A Rough Country.
Saline Valley, Inyo county, is one of the most remarkable places in the State. If the lofty Inyo Range were out of the way it would not exceed fifteen miles distance from Owens Valley. Yet it undoubtedly lies at one or two thousand feet lower altitude. It is simply an immense basin, say twelve by twenty-five miles in size, surrounded on all sides with great mountains. At its lowest point of depression is found some 1,300 acres of pure salt—millions of tons of it, glistening like crushed snow. Bordering on this on all sides except the west come miles square of sandy, dusty lands, caustic with alkali, borax or similar deposits.

Something Remarkable.

The locomotive and one car of a train on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad passed over a little child who was sitting between the rails on Tuesday morning. Then the train was stopped, and the conductor crawled under the car to collect the fragments. To the astonishment of everybody, he presently emerged with the child in his arms uninjured, except for a slight bruise on the forehead, where the pilot of the locomotive had struck him. All the trainmen and passengers insisted on hugging the little fellow before surrendering him to his father, who stood by.

Farming on a Large Scale.

While Dr. Glenn will not clear any money this year in his farming operations, still he will realize enough to pay all his expenses for the current year. He expects to realize at least 500,000 bushels of wheat from this year's crop. This will give him 30,000,000 pounds, which if sold at 1 1/2 cents per pound will realize $450,000 for the entire crop. He estimates his expenses for the crop year at something near $180,000.

The great coffee house of Jewett, Sherman & Co., of Milwaukee, Wis., is represented in Denver, Col., by Mr. W. H. Dunlap, who says: "Put me down as a believer in St. Jacobs Oil. I had rheumatism and it cured me. You can just bet on it every time."

BELL TONGUE SYRUP, AN ACCIDENTAL DISCOVERY OF GREAT VALUE.

An Inestimable Benefit to Mankind.

UNCLE BEN JO'S GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN PA. ADEA.

UNCLE BEN JO was born in Boston in 1820. Being a boy of rare and extraordinary gifts, he was sent to South America to study botany, and while there accidentally made the great discovery. The natives of this country were quite familiar with it, and had always supposed it to be a poisonous herb, which they used for the purpose of keeping snakes away from their tents or houses. This they did by laying it in a circle about the same as a proper distance off. This herb, Uncle J., as well as the natives, considered a very obnoxious and poisonous one, and when green and fresh it threw off a very disagreeable and repulsive odor. The herb grows about two feet high, and about eight inches of the top part of its stalk is leafless, and this part, laid over and hangs downward perpendicularly, and from its curved neck to its end it increases in size, and on the end of the same is a large, burly-looking ball, which stalk and ball, in this hanging position, looks precisely like the tongue of a bell. Hence Uncle J. named it the Bell Tongue Plant. In South America this herb is only found in the extreme interior of the country, and the natives there call it "Zarr Nere." It is a wonderful cure of kidney and liver diseases, also, dyspepsia, neuralgia and rheumatism. We have a whole library full of testimonials. Sold by OSBURN & SPOONER, Reno, Nev.

ENGLAND'S ERRORS.

When England imprisoned Parnell and Dillon and Davitt and men of a like stamp, agrarian crimes increased, and Gladstone had to send to Parnell in prison and ask him to propose a remedy. Coercion had done its best and was a failure, and the government which had imprisoned Irish patriots to silence the truth had to take them out of prison and acknowledge its error. How pitiable a blunder was gagging these men, instead of listening to them!

Just as England was about to begin right and do justice to Ireland came those horrible butcheries at Phoenix Park. Rage again took possession of England. Rage against the actual perpetrators of the murders and all who aided and abetted could not be too bitter; but rage against the innocent, against those Irish who deplored and shuddered at the crime, was a blind, brutal rage unworthy of a great race. Yet it is that which now inspires a severer policy after the other had failed. It will fail also, just so sure as there is blood in men's veins. It ought to fail, for it denies the Irish the rights of manhood.

Let not England think that she can safely sweep habeas corpus, trial by jury, free speech and right of protest out of existence in Ireland. This will accustom the British people to look on at the sacrifice of the rights of citizenship in Ireland, and prepare it to accept like treatment for Englishmen. The greatness of England was built upon the sturdy and uncompromising love of personal liberty, which no tyranny could overthrow. Free speech in Parliament denied to the Irish; personal liberty and habeas corpus denied to the Irish; trial by jury denied to the Irish—these were the bulwarks of British liberty. There never has been a time when the English would consent to have them trampled. They beat down thrones and kings and chopped off heads until these were put into charters and constitutions not to be taken away. We, of America, brought them to this land and planted them here—the most precious of our treasures. Even the bloody circuit of Jeffries did not deny trial by jury. The haughtiest king of England would not dare to deny it; or, at least, would not in the olden time, when kings were taught to know their place and keep it. But if Englishmen can look on and submit to the Russianizing of British subjects in Ireland, how long will it be before they would submit to it in England? To gag the Irish members in Parliament would be pleasant, perhaps; but on the same closure gag muzzles Englishmen also, then there comes a second thought. There will be a second thought also as to habeas corpus and trial by jury. To treat the Irish people as if they were Nihilists will only be to encourage Nihilism there as tyranny promotes it in Russia.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A Nebraska man, who has recently visited New Hampshire, says: "To see the farmers digging among the stones, trying to put the few acre patches into crops, present a most deplorable and uninviting picture." It used to be said that sheep's noses had to be ground to a point to enable them to feed in the crevices of rocks.

The Zoe Watkins Mystery Solved.

St. Louis, May 30.

A body believed to be that of Zoe Watkins, who so mysteriously disappeared from here on the afternoon of the 18th inst., was found this morning in the river at the foot of Miller street, Carondelet. While Joseph Ray, an old man who has followed the occupation of gathering drift wood in the Mississippi for the past 30 or 40 years, was rowing his skiff opposite Carondelet, some six miles below Central City this morning, he spied a body afloat in the water. He immediately attached a rope to it and dragged it on shore. On landing, he found it to be the remains of a young girl, and on examining it closely he discovered that the garments in which it was clothed bore a strong resemblance to those worn by Miss Zoe Watkins the day she disappeared, a description of which he had read. He immediately reported it to the police station in Carondelet, and two or three officers hastened to where the body laid and found that the clothing tallied exactly with the description given by the girl's sister, besides ear-rings, a ruby finger-ring and a bangle. Police headquarters in this city were at once notified and a detective instantly started for Carondelet. The girl's parents and friends were also notified. The body is now being brought to the city and will be placed in the Morgue, where Mr. Watkins, her father, will view it for identification. The body has been fully identified by James Martin, with whom the girl was stopping at the time of her disappearance. The corpse is so swollen and disfigured that Mr. Watkins decided he would not view the remains. A post mortem examination is now being held. There are no signs or marks of violence on the body, and she was not outraged.

A Lively Time in Congress.

WASHINGTON, May 31.

In the House proceedings yesterday the event of the day took place when a Readjuster from Virginia, Mr. Paul, rose to defend the Election Committee from the charge of failing to properly investigate a charge brought before them. In a short time he had occasion to use the name of Smith, who, he said, had been relied upon to make a case against the contestants. In a humorous, mock-heroic style he pictured the world standing still at the bidding of plain John Smith, who had proved himself the political Jumbo by obstructing legislation in the House of Representatives. He read from the records of the South Carolina Legislature, showing that Smith sold his votes on various occasions for $500, $200, and $100. Dibble himself had renounced him and only took him up now. Dibble very well knew where to get evidence, and how to get it cheap. As he proceeded, members on both sides suddenly realized that the hitherto obscure Virginian was making a brilliant and interesting speech, and looked around, regardless of politics, intent upon hearing all that he said. Inspired by the attention and eagerness manifested, the speaker suddenly deserted the election case and launched out into a justification of the Readjuster movement in Virginia. He showed that repudiation had been practiced in all Southern States. When he included Kentucky in the list, Meyers, Willets and Carlisle sprang up quickly to defend their State. They endeavored to parry the blows rained upon them by the now thoroughly aroused Virginian; but met with opposition from an unexpected quarter, when Representative White, one of their colleagues, corroborated Paul's statement by quoting the action of Allen county in repudiating the payment of certified bonds. A lively triangular fight ensued, in which the Kentuckians were worsted and Paul scored a handsome triumph.

Big Bear on a Hunt.

CHICAGO, May 31.

A St. Paul special says: Scouts just in from Milk river report that Big Bear is preparing to cross the border early in June with 500 lodges, to hunt in United States territory. He announces that if let alone he would harm nobody, but if attacked would fight to the last. This is the same band that encamped in the half-breed settlement on Milk River last Winter and captured Sheriff Healy's party, but released them and fled when the troops hurried toward them from Assinaboine. Straggling Indians have been crossing the line for some time. Major Liges, who is a very able Indian fighter, will probably take the field against them.

The Mormons Active.

CHICAGO, May 31.

The Inter Ocean says: If the people in general entertain the delusion that the laws recently passed by Congress for the extinction of polygamy in Utah have frightened the Mormons, let it be dispelled. Instead of keeping quiet, Utah Mormons are active as ever making proselytes. Evidence of this was seen yesterday in a train-load of converts that passed through the city on their way to Salt Lake. They numbered nearly four hundred, and were only a small part of the fruit of the labor of Mormon missionaries during last year in England, Scotland, Wales and Germany. They left Liverpool on the 17th inst. and expect to reach their destination next Saturday. One of the missionaries informed a reporter that last month 380 converts left Liverpool for Utah. On the 23d of June 800 more will reach New York, and in September about 400. Missionaries expect to continue their work. An effort was made to learn how much they regard the laws recently passed by Congress, and with that object in view a conversation was held with John Cooker. They were not afraid, he said. They regarded the law as unconstitutional and would resort to all means afforded by law for testing it. It would be carried to the highest courts, and his people had faith enough in the honor of the Supreme Court of the United States to believe the law would not be sustained. In the event of a decision adverse to them, their action then would be a matter for future consideration. He spoke confidently and as if he was prepared to meet any emergency.

The Fast Mail Project.

CHICAGO, May 31.

The Inter-Ocean had an interview with Postmaster-General Howe on the fast mail yesterday, which closed thus: Incidentally it is pertinent to say that although the subject was not all suggested by the Postmaster-General, if Union Pacific and Central Pacific should only increase their speed to 25 or 26 miles an hour—on other roads not considered breakneck speed—two whole days could be saved between New York and San Francisco.

A New Congressional District.

NEW YORK, May 31.

Colton Exter, a well-known Republican, will be a candidate for Congress in the new district in Texas which includes Galveston. It contains 27 counties. He is confident of entirely overcoming the majority, which is only 2400, nine-tenths of which comes from Galveston.

Ninety-nine Years.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 31.

The trial of Taylor Underwood for the murder of City Marshall J. P. McElrath at Greenfield, terminated last night. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, assessing a punishment of ninety-nine years. Underwood was tried once before and found guilty and sentenced to be hanged, but on appeal got a rehearing.

Author of the Morey Letter Found.

CHICAGO, May 31.

DEAD HEROES.

The Full Text of Robert H. Lindsay's Oration.

It was so late last evening before the close of the memorial exercises that the GAZETTE was unable to give its readers the very excellent oration delivered by Robert H. Lindsay, Esq. Knowing that it will be interesting to all who were unable to hear it delivered, we publish it in full to-day. Mr. Lindsay said:

FRIENDS AND FELLOW CITIZENS:—This morning we honor for any display of oratory. Therefore no attempt at word painting shall be made while I in my feeble way render my mite in assisting each of you in the performance of a pleasing though mournful duty. In every city, hamlet and village of our vast Republic—aye in many a lone spot where some hero "sleeps his last sleep," to-day this same beautiful tribute is paid to the memory of those whose patriotism and bravery preserved to us our Nation and our homes. As the sun in his daily course passes from the shores of the Atlantic to where the Pacific kisses the green sward of the Golden State he sees a continuous shower of floral rain dropping from gentle hands as a tribute to departed worth. While all over the land to-day the sons and daughters of the Sunny South join hand and hand with those who breathe the cooler breeze of the North, and each drop a sprig of evergreen on his grave who wore the gray as well as on his who wore the blue; yet, while we have tears of sympathy for our bereaved brethren, we think the lesson of the hour falls unheeded unless we, as each succeeding year takes its place in the eternal past, recount the reasons why we, the living, are here. We think of the graves of our dead heroes with the laurel and the cypress. By far the greater part of a quarter of a century has passed since a cruel fratricidal strife of five long years duration came to an end. This was a strife of giants battling for a principle. Blood and treasure both flowed with lavish hand. The sword and torch made homes, that erstwhile were the center of happiness, the abiding place of tears and of desolation, until to-day there is not a spot in our vast empire where the industry and energy of our race has called a community, however small, together, but is marked by the last resting place of some participant in that gigantic strife. And why this suffering of a great people? We of the North answer the question: We suffered, we spent our treasure, and we gave up the youth and manhood of our States that we might be a Nation among the peoples of the earth, that we might be all powerful to preserve the grand heritage left us by our fathers, a Union of States, one and inseparable, now and forever! Five millions of those who shared this heritage with us thought we misconstrued its benefits. He must be a narrow minded man who will even, after having shared in all the sufferings of our civil war, insist that our brethren, with whom we fought, were willfully and maliciously wrong. While we believe them wrong in the abstract, yet we must respect the opinions of five million of our own race, especially while it must be conceded that they, in upholding what they deemed the right, poured out their blood and treasure until, though vanquished, they commanded the respect and admiration of their foe. Time, which tries all things, has, we think, shown to those who engaged in that fearful struggle that we were not mistaken when we took up the gauge of battle. As the result of an undivided country, we are to-day the most prosperous people on the face of the earth. Nor is this unheard of prosperity confined to any particular portion or section of the Union. From the North, from the South, from the East and from the West, our country is pouring forth rivers of wealth in the products of the mine, the farm, the loom and the factory.

Our population is increasing until soon—perhaps too soon—the pioneer of the West will have to ask, where? where? As never before in the history of the Nation, the imperishable people of the old world are looking with fascinated gaze at our corn bins full to repletion. Our ports are filling with an emigration which seeks the desert places of the land, and by toil and industry makes them blossom as the rose. We point to all these blessings and say this is the result of the glorious deeds of those we honor to-day. These are the reasons why we garland these graves. Come brethren of the South, join hand in hand with us. Let it be an honest, hearty greeting across the "bloody chasm." While we extend the right-hand of fellowship to you we mingle the daisies of the North with the lilies of the South in a floral wreath to garland the graves of our departed chiefs, and we point you to a picture unparalleled in anything ever attempted by the most visionary of artists. See an undivided country; see the people of the world doing homage to a great Nation; see fifty millions of people reveling in peace and plenty. Hear the songs of freedom and of praise ascend on high, and join us in the grand anthem poured forth to Him who hath done all things well.

No more shall the war-cry ever, On the winding rivers be red; They banish our anger forever, When they laurel the graves of our dead. Under the sod and the dew, Waiting the judgment day; Love and tears for the Blue, Tears and love for the Gray.

The Dwellly Mill.
Joseph Kennedy left Reno this morning for the Mountain House mines, 35 miles from Carson, to aid in completing the dwellly mill, taking with him the copper plates to be used about the battery. The engine is nearly ready for work, and the whole plant will be in running order in ten days, when they will start to crushing.

THE BOX BUSINESS.

An Enormous Demand—How it is Filled—Improvements and Changes in Their Manufacture.

It looks as if the consumption of boxes on the Pacific Coast would continue to increase and the manufacture of them become one of the greatest industries in the country. There is already a vast amount of packing going on, and it must increase rapidly for many years, for the resources of the coast are not one-tenth part developed. The whole East is open to the California producer of grapes, apples, pears and small fruits, while the whole world is drawing on her for salmon, canned goods, boxes and other staples. Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas send for greens and vegetables every day in the year nearly, and they all have to be boxed. All this time great vineyards are being planted to grapes, the foothills are being cleared and orchards set out, the rivers are being stocked with salmon and trout, boxes are being opened up in Nevada, soda is being shipped to San Francisco by the car-load, to be refined and canned, the sugar trade is growing, manufactures are increasing, and they all are shipped in wood. The outlook is a grand one, and it should stimulate the manufacturers to make preparations for working cheaply and to advantage. The present way of turning out boxes is very extravagant, not only in material but in time. The circular Spalding saw now used cut a third of an inch of the log into sawdust each time it goes through. The Hoe saw wastes one-fourth of an inch. Now imagine a man cutting up lumber to make sugar or grape boxes half an inch or less in thickness, and figure on the loss. All the logs coming into the mill cost money. It is probable that the average cost for logs delivered at the mill door is very close to $5 a thousand. Now

THE BIG GANG SAWS
Running in Maine and Minnesota, working up and down, cutting a log all up at one trip, into all the way from ten to a hundred boards, waste only an eighth of an inch for each scarf. Now if one of the Truckee sawmills, cutting 40,000 a day, could make its waste an eighth of an inch instead of a third it would result in a saving of over 8,000 feet, worth over $40. That is the saving in lumber alone of one inch boards. But by the present method the lumber is cut into inch boards and split at the box factory. The gang would be able to cut it into half inch at the first run. Then it would dry quicker, thus saving interest and room. The gang mills would cut smaller trees, cut them faster and turn them out all ready for business. The logs would go in a constant stream all day long, butting tight up against each other and come out half-inch lumber. The loss in saw would be less, and the sap is the best for boxes. The custom of planing the lumber has been stopped, as the boxes stand travel better when a little rough. They do not shuffle about so much in the cars while the train is in motion. As timber in the mountains is gradually growing scarcer, the idea of saving will grow with the manufacturers and different classes of mills will be used for different kinds of work. This will give different firms specialties in which they can defy competition, and it will reduce cost.

A Lively Day—Two Runaways Within Half-an-Hour.

Flint's black horse took it into his head to take a little trip, on his own account this afternoon. He waltzed around the block a couple of times, when he took to the side-walk in front of Nasby's bazaar, where he was taken in by his owner, but not until he knocked Flint down and succeeded in making the shafts of the wagon look like the letter X.

The racket made by Flint's outfit frightened W. F. Everett's team standing in front of Lindley's store, and they, immediately seized with a desire to caper, started down the street with two children in the buggy, pulling Everett along by the reins. He finally stopped them, but not until he was pulled down, his clothes torn and his legs badly skinned. One of the children was thrown out, but escaped without injury. Next.

"Down the River."
Sherman the fisherman and Yankee Dodge's boy, with another venture-some youth, started this forenoon in the boat "Lily Sherman" for Pyramid Lake. When the craft went under the railroad bridge she was going 40 knots an hour. Shortly after she made a dive on a riffle and, lurching heavily, threw the old man and his crew in the lee scuppers. When she righted, both anchors were hanging to the footropes of the fore yard and the scuttlebutt was having a dog fight with the binnacle. At the rate they were going they ought to be the other side of Eureka now.

A Fatal Frame.
At Candelaria, yesterday morning, Omizime Levisne shot Joseph Ricard through the body while quarreling about the possession of some ore taken from the mine of John Bismar. Ricard died within a few minutes, but returned, the fire before he expired, putting a ball into Levisne's shoulder. In trying to escape, Levisne fell over some rocks and broke his left leg.

MR. MATED.

A Dangerous Wife—Further Particulars of the Truckee Cutting.

It appears that the cutting of James Ware, at Truckee, the account of which was published in these columns last evening, was the result of a family row, the wife of Ware doing the butchering with a razor. It appears they were married about ten years ago, but their domestic life has been anything but a happy one, they having had frequent family jars of a more or less serious nature during the whole of the time. A few evenings since they had a little discussion at the American Hotel, where Mr. Ware, his wife and step-daughter reside, which resulted in an understanding that the parties were to separate, and it is said engendered a great deal of hard feeling between them. About 10 o'clock Sunday Mrs. Ware was seen on the street in a greatly excited frame of mind, inquiring for her husband; but she failed to find him, and returned to the hotel. While she was out Mr. Ware came in and went to the room up stairs. In a few minutes Mrs. Ware returned to the room. Some words passed between the parties, and a moment after Mr. Ware was heard to call out, "I am cut," or "She has cut me," or words to that effect. Parties immediately rushed to the room, and found Mr. Ware bleeding profusely from a large gash on the side of the face. It appears that after the words passed Mrs. Ware seized a razor and struck at her husband with it, hitting him on the lower lip and inflicting a slight wound. Mr. Ware attempted to escape, when she struck him again with the weapon, this time cutting him on the left cheek, from the ear to near the middle of the upper lip, laying the whole of the upper jaw bare, the razor having been stopped by the teeth. The wound is not considered fatal.

His large and elegant stock of ladies' boots, shoes, slippers and sandals, and men's and boys' boots and shoes will be disposed of at prices lower than ever before offered. No humbug about this business—goods at your own prices. Remember the place, Tom Barnett's, west side Virginia street.

Rawhide Chairs.
A lot of rawhide bottom chairs were shipped from Reno to Butte City, Montana, this morning. If the Butte miners have not mechanical ingenuity enough to construct a better chair for less than the freight they will have to pay, they will not amount to much as practical miners. If there is a villainous abomination in the shape of anything to sit on, it is a chair with a bottom made of interlaced rawhide strings. After sitting on one of them for an hour or two, one feels as if he had been moulded into the interstices of a corduroy road, to say nothing of the wear and tear of his breeches.

Serious Accident.
This morning as A. Banta was driving from Joseph Frey's ranch, on the south side of the river, to town, his horses, frightened at a Washoe squaw sitting beside the road, plunged off the grade, throwing Mr. Banta out upon the rocks, dislocating his shoulder and severely bruising his body and limbs. The horses plunged down the steep embankment nearly demolishing the buggy and slightly injuring themselves. Mr. Banta's injuries are very painful, but not at all dangerous.

Bullies.
A lot of bullion came down on the V. & A. last night—about $30,000. Some of it came from the Northern Belle mine at Candelaria; the balance from Luming in Garfield District.

A TRUCKEE WEDDING.

A Blending of Hearts—Two Fond Souls Made One.
For the last month Truckee has been in a whirl of excitement in anticipation of the Brown-Moody wedding, which took place on Tuesday evening. The Methodist Church at Truckee was never so litterly packed as on this occasion. Long before the hour appointed for the ceremony (8 p. m.) the house was full and many were unable to obtain admission. Rev. W. C. Gray of Carson, brother-in-law of the bride, officiated, assisted by Rev. Mr. Carver. Immediately after the wedding service a reception was held at the parlors of the Truckee Hotel, which were crowded during the evening, refreshments being served out in abundance. The bride was attired in a handsome dress of nun's-veiling, elaborately trimmed, the groom appearing in the conventional black suit. The bridesmaids were Miss Jennie Goodwin of Portland, Oregon, and Miss Carrie Burkhalter of Truckee. The grooms were Messrs. James Ripley and A. R. Shurer. The ushers were Messrs. George D. Lewison, Thos. S. Ford, Asa Mills, W. F. Edwards, James L. Lewison and Wm. Douglass. The bridal presents were numerous and expensive. The happy couple left on the overland train, amid the congratulations of friends and a shower of slippers, to spend their honeymoon in Southern California.

JOHN GOES.

The little brown man from the Orient is making his way eastward rapidly. Another car filled exclusively with Chinamen went East this morning. These are going to do something in the neighborhood of Providence, Rhode Island. They hadn't the dreamiest idea of what sort of work they were engaged to do. Even the boss in charge knew nothing about it positively, but thought they were going into a cotton factory. Let them once get a grip on the factories of New England and there will be riotous times, such as were never seen before in this country. The Irish riots in 1824 in Boston and Charleston, when the convent of St. Ursula was burned and the wild populace cut the fire-hose and drove the firemen off; the mobs that have at several times since destroyed property in various other New England towns—these were pleasant social gatherings compared with what we shall hear of when the Chinese rice-pot clashes against the Boston bean-pot.
